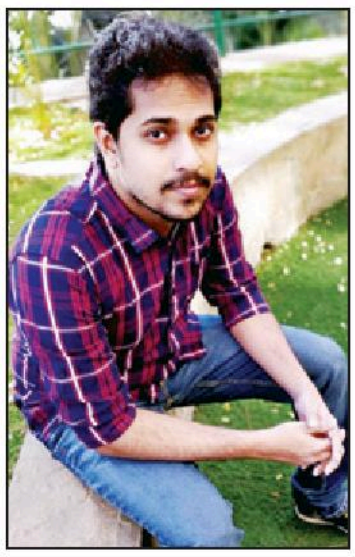
Mysuru student shot dead in the US

Mysuru, Nov. 29 (RK&BCT)- A 25-year-old student from Mysuru, who was pursuing his Master's in Computer Science at California State University in San Bernardino, has been shot dead yesterday. He is Abhishek Sudhesh Bhat, son of Sudhesh Chand, a resident of Manujapatha Road in Kuvempunagar.

Abhishek's family in Kuvempunagar got a call at around 11.30 pm yesterday informing about the incident. Shocked family members told Star of Mysore this noon that the caller from the US told them that Abhishek was shot dead inside a hotel where he was working part-time. The caller did not reveal any other information.

After a traumatic night, at 5.30 am, the family received another call confirming the shoot-out and Abhishek's death. The family was told that Abhishek's body has been kept at a local hospital in San Bernardino after the Police inquest and preliminary procedures.



Abhishek Sudhesh Bhat

San Bernardino is a city in California, East of Los Angeles and the city is closed now due to winter-like storm where numerous roadways are closed with authorities warning of floods and hailstorms. Family members said that as it is a Thanksgiving Day in the US on Nov. 28, there is no activity in the US. Thanksgiving is a federal holiday in the US, celebrated on the fourth Thursday of November. It originated as a harvest festival.

Attire and Administration

The top brass in the Government of one of the States in the country prescribed, may be after pondering among themselves for days over the societal ethos relating to people's attire, dress code for men and women at their respective work stations. Men among the staff in its administrative wings were directed to strictly avoid T-shirts and jeans, the attire that is virtually universal among all age groups from youth stage to even a section of senior citizens, specially those having made a trip to one of the countries beyond the shores of their motherland, not to forget the rustics who have also fallen for the mod style of dressing, no matter what their calling is. The office-going quill-drivers were prescribed formal dress consisting of conventional trousers (pants) and properly-fitting shirt, preferably tucked in. The women employees were given choice between conventional saree and salwar-kameez, which has attained ubiquitous taste of the species across all age groups, including grandmas and aged aunties. However, the attire of armed forces and law-keeping personnel, more appropriately uniform was left untouched.

Mysuru's residents in their eighties have clear memory of the lack-lustre uniform of Police Constables in bottom rung of the Department's hierarchy consisting of collarless shirt of khaki and embarrassingly wide starched shorts. However, the headgear, with lining of multi-coloured ribbons and shining tassels, presented the higher ranking cops in a bit of regal splendour. The rifles they carried was a little more lethal than ordinary firewood.

According to a writer, formerly holding a high post in the country's armed forces and also having served as a member of the country's prestigious National Advisory Security Board, presenting his views in an article published in a widely-read daily has appropriately expressed that uniform is not just a dress but an ethos. While the impressive dress-on-duty in respect of the land's armed forces is a legacy of the colonial rule in the land, that of the para-military personnel providing second line of defence is unostentatious. The presence of lathi and gun as part of the dress of the Police force may divert people's attention to their appearance in public. The tasks that the uniformed law-keepers are called upon to do have lately tended to be complex to the extent of causing hardship to them, hardly appreciated by people at large.

If the Police are seen as harsh while discharging their law-keeping duty, not only they are likely to be taken lightly by the offending parties but also the violators of the land's laws have to take the blame. Lastly, the expression "You are never fully attired until you wear a smile" also applies to both administrative staff and the Police force.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

Now I go to bed at 8.30," I told my relative who had complained that my mobile phone was switched off when he video-called me the previous night at nine. I had announced earlier that my sleep time is nine, hoping that these calls of bonhomie would be over by that time. I thought they would keep in mind my advancing age. My near and dear ones prefer video calls now. The caller would leisurely hand over the phone to everyone in the room, even hold it in front of their infants and pets, and exhort me to talk to them. Once the topics of conversation are exhausted, they even treat me to the scenery outside. The callers are usually not in a hurry to wind up their calls. They are comfortable since the calls are free of charge; they prolong it till I doze off or pretend to do so. I therefore thought it was prudent to spread the news of my sleep time, hoping to finish my pre-bed rituals uninterrupted. — Sivan Pillai in The New Indian Express

Cows wear VR headsets to reduce anxiety

Moscow: A cattle farm in Moscow's Ramensky district has equipped its herd with specially-designed virtual reality headsets to reduce cows' anxiety and hopefully increase their dairy production.

RusMoloko farm in Moscow recently equipped its cattle with VR systems adapted for the "structural features of cow heads". At first, people thought it was a joke, but Moscow's Ministry of Agriculture and Food confirmed that it had been conducting an experiment into how virtual reality affected cows' mood and dairy yield.

It's not clear how long the animals have been wearing the headsets, but according to reports, initial tests resulted in "reduced anxiety and improved overall emotional mood in the herd".

Man coughing for 2 months had live leeches in throat

Beijing: A man in China was horrified to discover that the cause of his non-stop coughing was two live leeches struck to his throat and nostril. The 60-year-old patient, who has not been named, spent two months with the leeches inside his body. It was only when his cough got unbearable that he decided to seek treatment and found the leeches in his nostril and throat.

The man from Xingwen County went to seek medical attention for his incessant coughing. He told doctors at Wuping County Hospital in Longyan that he had coughed up phlegm and blood. The doctors performed a bronchoscopy that revealed two live leeches inside him. One leech was found in his right nostril, while the other was found stuck below his glottis.

Doctors administered local anaesthetics to the patient before using tweezers to remove the live leeches. Everything went smoothly and the patient is now recovering.

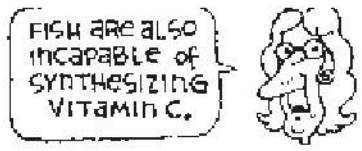
Other than humans, what mammals don't make their own Vitamin C?



Because of a mutation in the Gulonolactone Oxidase (Gulo) gene, humans are not able to produce Vitamin C on their own, as other animals do. It must be acquired through diet. Other animals with the same mutation: Guinea pigs, fruit bats and dry-nosed primates.

- Sea wolves, a rare subspecies of gray wolf, only eat seafood and live off the ocean. They can also swim for hours. Sea wolves, also known as the "British Columbia wolf," are among the 38 subspecies of the gray wolf. They inhabit a narrow region, which includes the near-shore islands and sections of the mainland coast. Found primarily in the temperate rainforests of British Columbia and Vancouver Island, these coastal wolves are divided into two groups – coastal island wolves and mainland coastal wolves. The mainland wolves, though coastal, consume less seafood than the island wolves. Unlike the inland wolves, the island sea wolves are entirely dependent on the sea for food.

Streetlights needed near APMC

Sir,

It is a pity that streetlights in and around APMC on Mysuru - Nanjangud Road do not burn at all. People waiting at the nearby bus stop are put to a lot of hardship due to this in catching buses as and when they come.

Vehicle drivers too need to be very cautious to check if someone is crossing the road and have to depend on their vehicle headlights only.

Now that there is heavy crowd at this junction always, especially between 6 pm and 9 pm, besides abnormal movement of goods vehicles in and out of the APMC yard, there is an urgent need for the authorities concerned to look into this civic urgency and ensure that the lights glow continuously.

Manhole blockage

Sir,

The manhole inside the Medical College Hostel (Men) compound abutting D. Subbaiah Road has been blocked since several days emanating unbearable stench to the residents of Premier Residency apartments. All our efforts to get it cleared by complaining to the Mysore City Corporation (MCC) and area Corporator are in vain.

Hope at least now the MCC takes steps to set right the defect and pave way for the residents to breathe easily.

Poll Officer issues showcause notice to teacher instead of party worker as they looked alike

Mandya, Nov.29 (Nagaiah)- In what appears to be a case of mistaken identity, the K.R. Pet bypoll Electoral Officer issued a showcause notice to a Government school teacher, a look alike of a JD(S) worker, for campaigning on behalf of the JD(S) candidate.

As per rules, Government servants are not supposed to take part in any electoral campaigns.

Electoral Officer H.K. Krishnamurthy issued showcause notice to Tendekere Government Primary School teacher Danasundar on Thursday, for campaigning which came as a shock to the teacher.

It has been reported that

Danasundar Govt. Teacher

Thimmegowda JD(S) worker

Thimmegowda, a JD(S) party worker, was campaigning for JD(S) candidate B.L. Devaraj, along with former Minister H.D. Revanna, the video clippings of which were telecast in the media.

Electoral Officer Krishnamurthy, after watching the video clippings on TV, mistook Thimmegowda for the Government Primary School teacher Danasundar and issued a notice to him, seeking an explanation within 24 hours.

The shocked teacher, Danasundar, after realising the goof-up by Electoral Officer Krishnamurthy, traced his look alike Thimmegowda and requested him to go along with him to the Electoral Officer's Office, to which Thimmegowda readily obliged.

The teacher then presented the JD(S) party worker before Poll Officer Krishnamurthy to prove to him that he had not broken any rules and that the Officer had unnecessarily issued a notice.

Of Village-Shy Doctors !

A report in my morning newspaper today says that the Government is finding it increasingly difficult to recruit doctors who are willing to serve in rural areas. The current scenario in our country where unemployment is rampant is that whenever the Government announces the openings even for some very humble and ordinary posts we find that applicants always outnumber the vacancies a hundred fold.

And, we also find that many youngsters who are actually very over-qualified for the posts also end up attending the interviews with great hopes of landing a job. That is why we read reports of many engineers and post-graduates applying for jobs of Police Constables and Railway running men. Most of these people do this as they feel that with them very likely to miss the age deadlines for landing permanent jobs and with their anxious parents ageing fast, getting any job that can keep the hearth burning at home is what matters most!

But when our Government recently advertised for twelve vacant posts of Physicians in its Primary Health Centres it appears only three doctors turned up for the walk-in interview! The report however does not venture to say what these brave young men had to say after attending the interview and listening to the terms and conditions of the Government. But as a Physician I can say with a good deal of certainty that they would have scoffed at the crumbs offered by the Government and walked out!

Yes, it takes a full nine years for any hard working and sincere student to qualify as a Physician. Add to this the few months of delays that become inevitable because of the long drawn out selection process between the completion of internship and entry to post-graduate courses and this makes it a full ten years which I think makes this the longest of all education processes.

Now if we take into account the cost involved in acquiring a post-graduate medical degree even from a Government Medical College it makes it one of the most expensive courses too. After all this is it not natural for any newly-qualified medical post-graduate to expect a decent salary and a decent life with a few attractive perks and amenities if he or she chooses to serve in our villages? So these youngsters prefer to join large private hospitals that offer them reasonably attractive salaries and fixed working hours as Junior Registrars with no responsibility or liability whatsoever. These two bugbears of all private medical establishments are taken care of by their senior consultants who actually handle the patients, their relatives and also face any of the legal stand-offs generated by them. Till they themselves grow some grey hair and become independent consultants they just don't have to worry about anything beyond which swanky car to buy next or which holiday destination to head to with their families!

Now let us see what our Government has to offer them here in its contract package for rural medical specialists. A comprehensive salary of about fifty or sixty thousand rupees with absolutely no perks, incentives or inducements whatsoever. A hospital without adequate staff and equipment or even a sufficient supply of essential drugs that last a full month. Accommodation alongside this ghost hospital in a tattered and leaky single bedroom dwelling the Government very reverentially calls 'Doctors' Quarters' with no standby power to tide over power outages that can sometimes last for days.

No extra compensation beyond a very paltry rural allowance for enduring the hardships of a life in a remote rural set up without any modern amenities. No arrangement to provide them any orderlies or domestic help in a situation where their families have to fend for themselves. No means of providing them with any personalised transport facilities which enable them and their families to visit some nearby city on weekends to have a taste of civilisation and its small pleasures. No concessions for their children either by way of specialised quotas in education or employment. No special general or medical insurance cover for them or their families for enduring the harsh and risky life in villages. No relief whatsoever from taxes or interest on bank loans if they opt to start their own medical establishments after having done their share of good to our villagers at our Government's bidding. And, most of all, no promise whatsoever of regularising their appointment and converting it into permanent employment with an assurance of all subsequent postings at least in district headquarters if not in metropolitan cities.

I think O. Henry has very rightly said that "Love and business and family and religion and art and patriotism are nothing but shadows of words when a man is starving." So, why should we begrudge any youngster when he or she, at the prime of his or her life and after a gruelling ten years of professional education, tries to get the best of what life has to offer instead of opting for another hard grind with no rewards or returns? I'm sure you'll all agree with me that this is a very logical question. But I am not asking this question sitting in my favourite armchair. I am asking this after having served a full fourteen years of 'Vanavasa' in a very remote rural set up soon after my marriage, with my wife and two very young children who were not only born but also grew up there.

Yes, we had power outages that lasted for days, we spent dark rainy nights sitting on our porch braving mosquitoes, spiders and blister bugs and telling our children stories of our own childhood, we bought meat and poultry only once a week and often threw them away because our refrigerator had no power, we would happily walk a mile each way holding hands, to buy vegetables and village-baked bread, we watched no television simply because there was no transmission, we did have a telephone but still drove fifteen kilometres to contact our folks back home because our line was always dead! But for me this was no 'punishment posting' but a time which the four of us cherish as a long and happy holiday in the lap of nature, exploring the countryside and discovering the secrets of why you never ever see a sad bird or an unhappy squirrel or hare!

Every third Sunday will be e-waste collection day

Mysuru, Nov. 29 (BCT)- From next month (December), every third Sunday will be e-waste (electronic waste) collection day. Mysuru City Corporation (MCC), along with NGOs and volunteers till now were collecting e-waste on 17th of every month.

For this purpose, over 800 Pourakarmikas who have undergone training in collection and disposal of e-waste will be deputed to collect the waste. Over 235 pushcarts and 165 auto tippers will collect e-waste.

According to MCC officers, third Sunday has been chosen for e-waste collection to ensure that the city residents will not face any inconvenience to handover e-waste to Pourakarmikas. A fixed day like 17th of every month was not workable as it might fall on a working day where people would be at work with their houses locked. Sunday means everyone will be at home and it will be helpful for all the city residents, officials said.

E-waste is one of the fastest growing waste streams and India is the 5th largest generator of e-waste. The system of e-waste collection in Mysuru was launched in city on Sept. 17 as part of Prime Minister Narendra Modi's birthday.

The collection drive received good response as in the last three months over five tonnes of e-waste has been collected from households. Volunteers went on door-to-door campaign urging residents to hand over e-waste. The collected waste included batteries, computers, keyboards, mobile phones, obsolete electronic equipment, television sets, tube lights, chargers and printers. Pourakarmikas collect e-waste and dump the same at the premises of all nine MCC Zonal Offices.

Later, the collected e-waste would be auctioned and sold and the funds generated from the auction would be used for 'Green-Mysuru' initiative. A couple of authorised recyclers have evinced keen interest in picking up and recycling of e-waste, MCC sources said.

Pourakarmikas and NGO representatives have been trained on e-waste collection. They have been sensitised about handling hazardous elements like lead, mercury, cadmium etc. present in the e-waste. E-waste also has some rare earth elements that need to be extracted and recycled efficiently which can only be done in well-equipped facilities.

There are nine zero waste units in the city with four to five nodal officers in-charge, apart from Assistant Commissioners and Environment Engineers.

A Control Room has been set up with the following phone numbers: 0821-2440890 or Mob: 9449841195/96 and the public can call to inform about e-waste.

Harangi Desilting to begin in December

After Harangi, proposal will be sent to Govt. to desilt KRS

Kushalnagar, Nov. 29 (Akshay, RK&BCT)- Desilting work at Harangi Dam backwaters in Kodagu will begin in December and the works will be initiated after the completion of by-elections. The State Government has sanctioned Rs. 130 crore for the project.

Over one tmcft (one thousand million cubic feet) of silt has accumulated at Harangi Dam, the main Cauvery water supply reservoir from the catchment areas to Krishna Raja Sagar (KRS) Dam in Mandya, the lifeline of South Karnataka and Tamil Nadu. The accumulation of silt had resulted in a sharp dip in the water level impounded in the reservoir. Farmers in the region had been urging the Government to complete desilting work at the earliest.

Irrigation official sources told Star of Mysore that once the desilting at Harangi is completed, a proposal will be sent to the State Government to desilt parts of KRS Dam. Sources said that the actual work will begin by the end of December after obtaining clearance from Finance Department.

Work after elections

Confirming this, Harangi Executive Engineer Nagaraj told SOM this morning that desilting will be taken up at those areas where there is no water at present. Due to flash floods and landslides last year, a large amount of silt (top soil) has flown into the Dam from Kootupole, Hattihole, Madapura and other areas. "It is election time now and funds are with the Finance Department. Once the by-election is over we will get fund clearance from the Finance Department," he said.

On the method of desilting, Nagaraj said that they will identify the dry areas where silt deposits are high and earthmovers will be used for the work. "Tenders will be called and experts will be consulted for the work," Nagaraj added. Madikeri MLA M.P. Appachu Ranjan told this newspaper recently that Rs. 130 crore has been allocated and the Cabinet has to clear the amount.

Geo Marine survey

The State Government had asked the Karnataka Engineers Research Station (KERS) to conduct a survey of the river to ascertain the amount of silt deposited in the Dam. In turn, the KERS assigned the task to Geo Marine Solutions Pvt. Ltd. and the team conducted the survey in February this year.

An eight-member Geo Marine Solutions team carried out the silt estimate and the team did a Bathymetric Survey (measuring the depth of a water body as well as map the underwater features of a water body) and a hydrographic survey (physical features present underwater) in the backwaters of Harangi. Drone camera technology was used map dry areas.

Based on KERS report that stated that 1 tmcft of silt has accumulated in the Dam, the Cauvery Neeravari Nigam Limited (CNNL) that is in-charge of dams on the Cauvery Basin had prepared a Detailed Project Report for Rs. 130 crore and submitted to the State Government.

Desilting at KRS

Accumulation of silt over the years has also affected water storage in the Krishna Raja Sagar (KRS) Dam and there has been a demand from farmers and residents of Mysuru to desilt the Dam to increase its storage capacity.

The capacity evaluation of KRS was conducted way back in 2009 and it said that the Reservoir lost 6.7% of its storage capacity. A factor to note here is that the river flows through rocky terrain from Talacauvery in Kodagu and a major portion of the upstream region is hilly terrain with thick forests. As such, water does not carry much silt compared with rivers flowing through the plains.

Highway to Tamil Nadu-Kerala to be tolled

Mysuru, Nov. 29 (RK&BCT)- Come December, you will have to pay toll to drive along Mysuru-Nanjangud Road to reach Ooty, Mysuru-T. Narasipur Road to reach Kollegal and Tamil Nadu and Gundlupet-Moolehole Road to reach Kerala. All these roads are part of NH-766 (earlier NH-212) that will become a tolled road.

The Ministry of Road Transport and Highways has issued a gazette notification to introduce toll on these roads on Nov. 20. The notification authorises the National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) to collect toll either through its officials or through contractors.

According to the gazette notification, three toll plazas will come up on this stretch bordering Kerala and Mysuru. It includes Maddur near Gundlupet, near Kadakola between Mysuru and Nanjangud and near Yedathore close to T. Narasipur.

Speaking to Star of Mysore this morning, NHAI Project Director B.T. Sridhar said that following the notification, the roads will be tolled and the process of fixing the rates is on. "We need to finalise the prices and a couple of meetings will be held and it is too early to spell details about the likely toll charges. A public notification will be issued after discussion and tenders will be issued inviting toll-collecting contractors," he said.

Yedathore Toll Plaza.

The NH 766 project entailed upgrading the Mysuru-Nanjangud section (24 km) to a four-lane stretch in view of the high traffic density. The project was taken up with the understanding that it would be a tolled highway. The highway links Uttamballi in Kollegal region of Chamarajanagar district with Moolehole in Bandipur and is linked to Kozhikode in Kerala.

"The estimated capital cost of the project is Rs 429.45 crore. The NHAI shall maintain a record of the recovery of capital cost through user fee realised and after recovery of the capital cost, the fee leviable shall be reduced to 40% of the rates and shall be revised annually in accordance with the said rules," the notification said.

As per the Ministry notification, the Central Government will levy the fee for a 33.679 km stretch from Moolehole, for 26.751 km stretch on the Mysuru-Nanjangud section and for 47.148 km stretch from Varakodu.

The notification also states that the rate for monthly pass for a person who owns a mechanical vehicle registered for non-commercial purpose and resides within a distance of 20 km from the toll plaza will be Rs. 265 per month for the year 2019-20 subject to revision every year.

It may be recalled here that there were severe protests by farmers led by Raitha Sangha against the introduction of toll on the road as the stretch is the only link that connects Mysuru to Nanjangud, Mysuru to T. Narasipur and Gundlupet to Moolehole.

The road is taken by farmers who take their produce to Kerala and Mysuru. Following pressure, the toll was not enforced till now.

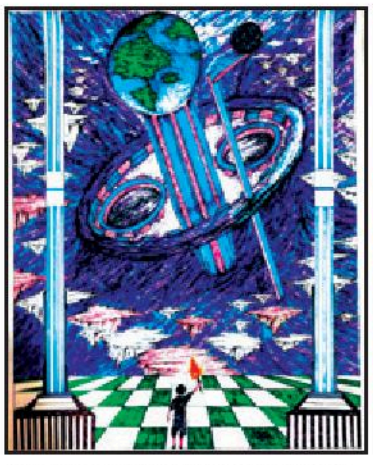
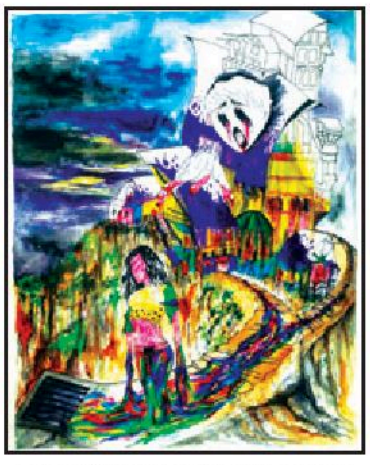
'Trajectory of Depression'

Solo art expo at Bharani Art Gallery from Dec.1





Mysuru, Nov.29- Marking its Silver Jubilee Year, Bharani Art Gallery, Mysuru, has organised a solo art expo titled 'Trajectory of Depression' by Alip Majumdar, artist from West Bengal, at its premises, M-1198, 3rd Main, 6th Cross, Vivekanandanagar from Dec.1 to Dec. 3 from 11am to 7pm. Entry is free.

Alip Majumdar

The expo will be inaugurated at 11 am on Sunday by S. Prakash, Chairman, Pramur Group, Mysuru. Prof. C.K. Vanamala, Associate Professor in the Department of Information Science & Engineering and Joint Student Welfare Officer, NIE, will be the chief guest. Senior artist and Gallery Curator N.B. Kaverappa and Artist Alip Majumdar will be present.

About the expo

The expo showcases the true story of a young artist from West Bengal, Alip Majumdar, how he himself overcame depression through the self therapy of paintings and drawings.

The 22-year-old artist from Siliguri, West Bengal, is presently residing in Mysuru, pursuing his Engineering in Electronics and Communication at NIE. He is a self-taught artist with little training during his childhood.

His initial two years of Engineering in Mysuru was eclipsed by clouds of anxiety and depression due to fear and loneliness. It almost reached to a breaking point. Suddenly, at this juncture, the artist in him surfaced and he started experimenting with mixed media on paper to ease himself out. It worked like a positive drug therapy and he became a normal person.

His debut in the field of art is thus 'The Trajectory of Depression,' a creative journey. Out of the many art works created by him, about 20-odd art works done during this period and later, are being exhibited at Bharani Art Gallery, Mysuru.

The artist has used water colours, markers, sketch pens, gel pens, pencils (Mixed Media) on paper to create his way of liberty. These unconventional art works seems to be playing with highly conceptual ideas, from moderate dark colours to extremely colourful areas and then traversing towards intense blacks. Sometimes they seems to be funny and cartoonish, depending upon his mood and the then state of his mind. This series of art works "Trajectory of Depression" represents the intensity of Alip's mental state during that period of turmoil. Study of these art works may be of immense help to psychologists and other persons involved in mental health, to find new ways and means to ease mental problems of their patients.

Silver Jubilee Year for Bharani

Bharani Art Gallery [1994 -2019] is the first private Art Gallery of Mysuru and the only Gallery in Karnataka, with hot water and toilet attached guest room, being offered to the artists, free of rent. Twenty-five years on service basis, without any assistance by Government or Government-controlled Academies/ Institutions is itself a great achievement. Instead of celebrating by holding a huge programme, the Gallery has taken a decision to conduct special art exhibitions dealing with special subjects and other art-related lectures and discussions. For details, contact Chief Convenor N.B. Kaverappa on Mob: 94485-54221.

8th Anniversary of Devagitam Charitable Trust tomorrow

Grand vocal concert by Dr. Pantula Rama

Devagitam Charitable Trust celebrates its 8th Anniversary with a grand vocal concert by Dr. Pantula Rama on Saturday, the 30th of November. The Trust has been serving the Arts, Literature and Education since its inception in 2011. It has been striving towards preserving and propagating the works of H. Yoganarasimham, scholar-composer of Mysuru, through concerts by eminent artistes and workshops.

H. Yoganarasimham

Dr. Pantula Rama

'Sangeeta Kalasagara' Dr. Pantula Rama is a total musician who has seamlessly merged classicism with novelty, intellectualism with aesthetics and sahitya with sangeeta bhava. Hailing from Vishakhapatnam, Dr. Rama had her initial training in music from her father Pantula Gopala Rao. Her musical persona was later shaped by "Sangeeta Kalasagara" Ivaturi Vijayeswara Rao.

Equipped with a vast repertoire and a highly imaginative approach, she is renowned for her interpretation of the works of old and new composers. Her mastery and effortless rendition of Ragam, Tanam, Pallavi and exploring new possibilities within that framework has enthralled audiences. Her efforts to propagate the right way to sing "sādhinchene", with all the swarasahityas suffixed by the Pallavi is a commendable contribution to Karnatak music practice in recent times. She has founded PaRa...the Supreme, a 'no barrier' socio-cultural movement, with the goal of creating and heightening the awareness of the art of Karnatak music with an openness towards all genres of music. The objective of the movement is to achieve oneness with the Supreme Consciousness through pure note (SwacchSwar). Music is her life, and she is doubly blessed to have eminent artiste Vid. MSN Murthy as her life partner. The couple have been conquering the hearts of rasikas world over with their music.

Accompanying her would be Vid. MSN Murthy on violin, Vid. Tumkur B. Ravishankar on mridanga and Vid. Sharath Koushik on ghata. The programme commences at 6.30 pm tomorrow at Veena Seshanna Bhavana in Kuvempunagar.

Mahatma was a unique global personality: Veteran Gandhian

Mysuru, Nov.29 (PM&DM)- Mahatma Gandhi was a unique global personality and the richest person in the world in terms of principles and ideals, said veteran Gandhian Vemagal Somashekar.

He was speaking at the lecture series on the topic "Gandhiji and Youth Power" at a programme jointly organised by University of Mysore (UoM) Prasaranga and the Centre for Gandhian Studies at Gandhi Bhavan in Manasagangothri here on Thursday.

Pointing out that probably Mahatma Gandhi has the highest number of Institutions named after him more than anyone else in the world, Somashekar said that Gandhi always believed that mother, motherland and mother-tongue were the most sacred.

Citing an example of Gandhiji's love for mother-tongue, he said that Gandhiji, upon his return to the country from South Africa, strongly objected to when journalists began to speak with him in English and asked them to speak in Gujarati.

Recalling that Gandhiji learnt to sign in Kannada during his 3-day stay in North Karnataka in 1934, he said that the Mahatma was too pleased when he signed autographs for youths in Kannada.

Recollecting the spirit of Gandhiji for writing even in his old age, Somashekar said Gandhiji used to write in both hands, which was unique in itself. He further said that the ideals and spirit of Mahatma should inspire the younger generation to carry forward his legacy.

Prasaranga Director Prof. M.G.Manjunath, Gandhian Studies Centre Director Prof. M.S. Shekar and others were present.

WORD OF THE DAY

Billingsgate

Pronunciation: BIL-ingz-gayt.
Meaning: Coarsely abusive language.
Origin: From its beginnings during the time of the Roman occupation, the Billingsgate fish market in London, England, has been notorious for the crude language that has resounded through its stalls. In fact, the fish merchants of Billingsgate were so famous for their swearing centuries ago that their feats of vulgar language were recorded in British chronicler Raphael Holinshed's 1577 account of King Leir (which was probably William Shakespeare's source for King Lear). In Holinshed's volume, a messenger's language is said to be "as bad a tongue ... as any oyster-wife at Billingsgate hath." By the middle of the 17th century, billingsgate had become a byword for foul language.
Example: The torrent of involuntary filth that spewed from my mouth at those points couldn't have been good for my son's linguistic development. He, too, is in his gibberish phase. God help him if he ends up with my Billingsgate vocabulary. — Benjamin Preston.

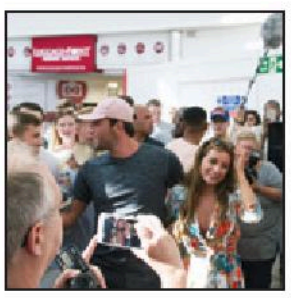
THE ODD WORD

Bakelite

Type of solid plastic.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Bang on about



Meaning: Talk repetitively and boringly about something.
Origin: The term 'bang on' has been used to mean either 'exactly on', that is, physically close to, or 'exactly right'. Those two meaning are exemplified here, respectively:
An advertisement in Punch April 1936: "Quiet garden square near Hyde Park. Real hot water. Bang on Tubes."
('Bang on Tubes' means 'very close to an Underground station'. 'Real hot water' - who knows? Better than imaginary hot water I suppose.)
John Hunt and Alan Pringle Service Slang, 1943: "Bang on, bomber slang for 'O.K.' or 'Everything's all right'." These derive from an earlier American usage of simply 'bang', meaning 'exactly'.
'Bang on about' has a different meaning though and doesn't appear to be related to either of the above. It is a British coinage.
The Economist, October 1979: "Mr. Patrick Jenkin - Social Services - In cabinet tries hard but is inclined to bang on a bit."
Julie Burchill, Sex & Sensibility, 1990: "This cry was taken up by the alt coms [alternative comedians] - Benny and Jenny and Lenny and Dawn - who would bang on about Reagan being an actor."

QUOTE BOX

When you go out, go out with a bang, anything you do. —Playboi Carti
